Dialogic Mimesis

Michael W. Dean: Music
Phil Wormuth: Words, voice.

LYRICS:

Dialogic Mimesis

He is quoted (at length) thru open windows, between bars - a gilt tongue tarnished
by officious exclamations - gushing imperious dogmatic scholasticism with a snappy exactness.
Toxic tautologies result.

Massive, dramatic departures from the truth;
circuitous intuitions, muddy suppositions (ineffective and contrary.)
Contingent discord that arises from riotous, unstable regions of the costume brain.

Operations of enlightenment -
the fruit of crucial habit and about-face ethics.
Workable designs set in cement;
these hallowed words inscribed therein:
"habitus mimesis."
Poor mind hygiene leads to dangerous thoughtlessness.

Dialogic alterity results in discontinuity.
Mirror stage - literal interpretation of mind-body fragmentation leads to aggressive tension between the subject and image...

hacked concepts and golden numbers
passed in the shadows
copper pot philosophical froth in bogus basins with less than restorative implications.

No Picnic in the Park

Michael W. Dean: Music, words.

Phil Wormuth: Words and voice.

She had a picnic

and we ate the picnic while we walked.

It was a walking picnic and we walked like three blocks to the World Trade Center. I'd never been to....

No picnic in the park...

There were cool cucumber sandwiches,
"Potato salad, German or Italian?"
a can of hot Vienna sausages...
and there was wine - a nice, dry Riesling
(just how I like it) ...only some flies.

First, I got hit in the head by a football.
I should have known that those lawn darts spelled trouble...
We didn't deserve the desserts we got;
never recovered from the fumble.

Somehow, it all added up to disaster.

NOTES:

First lyrics written by and voiced by MWD.

Every part after " No picnic in the park..." by Phil Wormuth.

The Company Business Firm, Inc.

Michael W. Dean: Music.

Phil Wormuth: Words, voice.

LYRICS:

The Company Business

Overall sales are up due to growing demand.

Market shares - skyrocketing.

Diversifying stock portfolio as we speak.

Unprecedented hiring drive.

Expanding exponentially into foreign markets.

Unconfirmed rumors that the company is going public are just that.

CEO and CFO recently roasted - receive plastic parachute novelty gag gift
(courtesy of R & D.)

Price-gouging in full effect;
artificially inflated prices under the guise of increased foreign taxes and tariffs - OK with consumers.

Recently released studies show dangerously high lead content in product; payoffs in place.
Capital funds generated in the third quarter exceeded expectations (most likely due to recently expanded product line) but somewhat offset by an unusually high rate of embezzlement.

All company employees awarded gym memberships and gps tracking devices disguised as watches (will be disciplined if noncompliant.) Newly adopted policy restricts use of personal communication devices on company property by all underlings.

Furthermore, personnel is rolling out a new program to help decrease employee “burnout” by issuing vouchers redeemable for free, one time, microchip implantation (which promises to do the trick.)

-End of report

NOTES:

MWD says:

Facebook, Twitter and more are blocking people. Reminds me of book burnings, or the screenwriters black list in the 50s.

Time Sharing at Dartmouth in 1974

Michael W. Dean: Music.

Phil Wormuth: Words, voice.

LYRICS:

Math Worms

My fool ear is full of dirt - raw material for the math worms
to make their strangely emotive art (dark and dirgy, heavy elegiac music)
that only the moon can hear.

NOTES:

Music is a cut up of "The Company Business Firm", Inc reversed, with changes in notes, tempo, and instrumentation. plus some Google Bach-ing of my melodies.

Title refers to the room in New Hampshire where computer Time Sharing was invented. (That is used in every computer now.)

My older sister was going to college there. She took me to the computer room and I got to play tic-tac-toe on a terminal. It was 1974, and I was 10.

I was asking a lot of questions and some evil students locked me in the bathroom for a few minutes as punishment. Freaked me out.

So yeah, I've been causing problems with the Internet, and irking people with my actions, since 1974.

Also, on that trip to Dartmouth, my sister took me to the music department and gave me a tour. I remember walking by this big empty room where a guy with long hair was playing interesting slow music on a piano. It echoed in the room. I said to myself "When I grow up, I'm going to do that."

I do that in this song. Or at least it sounds like I do. And it IS about time for my once-a-year haircut.

If 9 were 12

Michael W. Dean: Music, title.
Phil Wormuth: Words and voice.

LYRICS:

If 9 were 12.

Diverted cynicism - disdainful social submission;
ritualistic spin-speech, forbidden critical doctoral syntax.
Dispatch confusion, forbid forensic examination
(potential for toxic thesis.)

Therein given the risks, that findings different from dosing the system

lead to forbidden genetic tampering, resulting the eventual death of the self.
Final function - a chemical (given special consideration.)
Differing diagnoses - physician giveth gibberish - getting his kicks...

buzzing, fizzling instrumental confab
fixing to make a full, fiscal recovery
... by eliminating the "middle-man."

NOTES:

Title refers to microtonal tuning of this song (9 edo over 12 edo).

The title is also a nod to the Hendrix song "If 6 Was 9."

It's "If 9 Were 12", not "If 9 Was 12", because I'm correcting Hendrix's wrong grammar in his title, "If 6 Was 9."

NOTES:

Lyrics are partially a cut-up from my album release checklist on the BipTunia site:

<https://biptunia.com/?p=4764>

Music is a cut-up also.

So I'm trying something new, sort of aleatory cut-up for music notes.

Putting a known song into MIDI, viewing in what's called "the piano roll" (based on a player piano paper roll, pretty much all DAWs, digital audio workstations, like Reaper, have this).

Then flipping the notes up-down, as well as left-right. Makes totally new melodies.

Below is an image of my before & after with "Also Spake Zarathustra" (known as "The theme to 2001 a Space Odyssey.")

Here is the song, if you can't picture it in your mind's ear:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QwxYiVXYyVs>

This song flips that, and The Addams Family Theme Song (here if you don't recall it: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=X6QzvbvH-ZNo>)

As with poem cut-ups, I rearrange some notes after the cut-up.

Attached is a screenshot of "Also Spake Zarathustra", before and after. Left of the yellow line is before flipping and reversing, to the right of the blue line is after (but before I change any notes).

I'm pretty sure the result would also not be a copyright violation, because the result is not recognizable to the ear as the source songs. Though has similar vibe, harmony, and melody types, which would be very different from the harmony and melody types I make on my own.
