NOTES:

"Chicks Dig Me" is something Perry Farrell said to me once.

I was in the front of a Ryder truck with him, Steven Drozd from (opening band) Flaming Lips was driving to the Porno for Pyros gig at the Warfield.

Women kept waving to Perry as we drove though the Tenderloin district.

After the fourth one, I asked Perry "Do you know her?" He said "No, Chicks just dig me."

"Weasel War Dance" is a real thing and it's amazing:

Genre: Experimental Dark Symphonic Electronic Pop.

There are no lyrics on this album.

The title of the album refers to how a full moon or near full moon makes it hard to see other celestial objects through a telescope. The moon is cool otherwise.

Some of these songs are severe remixes of songs from BipTunia's album 20 and album 24. The last few albums were also severe remixes, and the next few will be. The songs are so different they are different songs.

I HIGHLY recommend having a stereo with a subwoofer. Here's the 12-inch one I use, along with the inexpensive bass amp I with it.

Though any good one that shakes the room will work.
